CREDIT REPORT review checklist

Use the following worksheet to review each section of your credit report. Do this for each credit report you get throughout the year. Then, keep the completed checklist with your credit report.

If you find something wrong with your credit report, you should dispute it. You may contact both the credit reporting company and the creditor or institution that provided the information.

You may file your dispute online at each credit reporting agency's website. If you file a dispute by mail, your dispute letter should include: Your complete name, address, and telephone number; your report confirmation number (if you have one); and the account number for any account you may be disputing.

Send your letter of dispute to credit reporting companies by certified mail, return receipt requested, so that you have a record that your letter was received. The creditor or the credit reporting agencies generally have 30-45 days to investigate your dispute.

|                    | Write a letter to the credit bureau that sent you the report.                                                                                                                                                              |
|                    | Provide the account number for the item you feel is not accurate.                                                                                                                                                          |
|                    | For each item, explain concisely why you believe it is not accurate.                                                                                                                                                       |
|                    | If you can, include copies of bills or cleared checks (money order stubs) that show you have paid them on time.                                                                                                            |
|                    | Provide your address and telephone number at the end of the letter so the credit bureau can contact you for more information if necessary.                                                                                 |
|                    | Make a copy of your letter before you send it to the credit bureau.                                                                                                                                                        |
|                    | Send the letter. You may choose to use Certified Mail with Return Receipt to have proof of when the letter was received. The consumer reporting agency or the creditor generally has 30-45 days to investigate your claim. |

If you suspect that the error on your report is a result of identity theft, visit the Federal Trade Commission's Fighting Back Against Identity Theft website (<https://identitytheft.gov/>) for information about identity theft and steps to take if you have been victimized. This will include filing a fraud alert and possibly filing a security freeze.

See the blow example letter if you decide to dispute any information on your credit report via written letter.
